Building Sails: Technology and Craftsmanship go hand in hand

There are innumerable different combinations of materials, fiber strength, sail cut, size, and sail making techniques. With an experience spanning 70 years, you can rest assured that we will design the ideal sail for your sailing preference.

With an eye to detail

Each design process starts with the measurement of the rig. The sail designers at Elvstrøm Sails then use the rig data to create an exact, three-dimensional computer model. This means the sail plan can be perfectly matched to the geometry of the rig.

Being the OEM supplier to many European boat yard builders we have a lot of data in-house. And through our network of Elvstrøm SailPoints, we are able to have your boat measured specifically for your new sails.

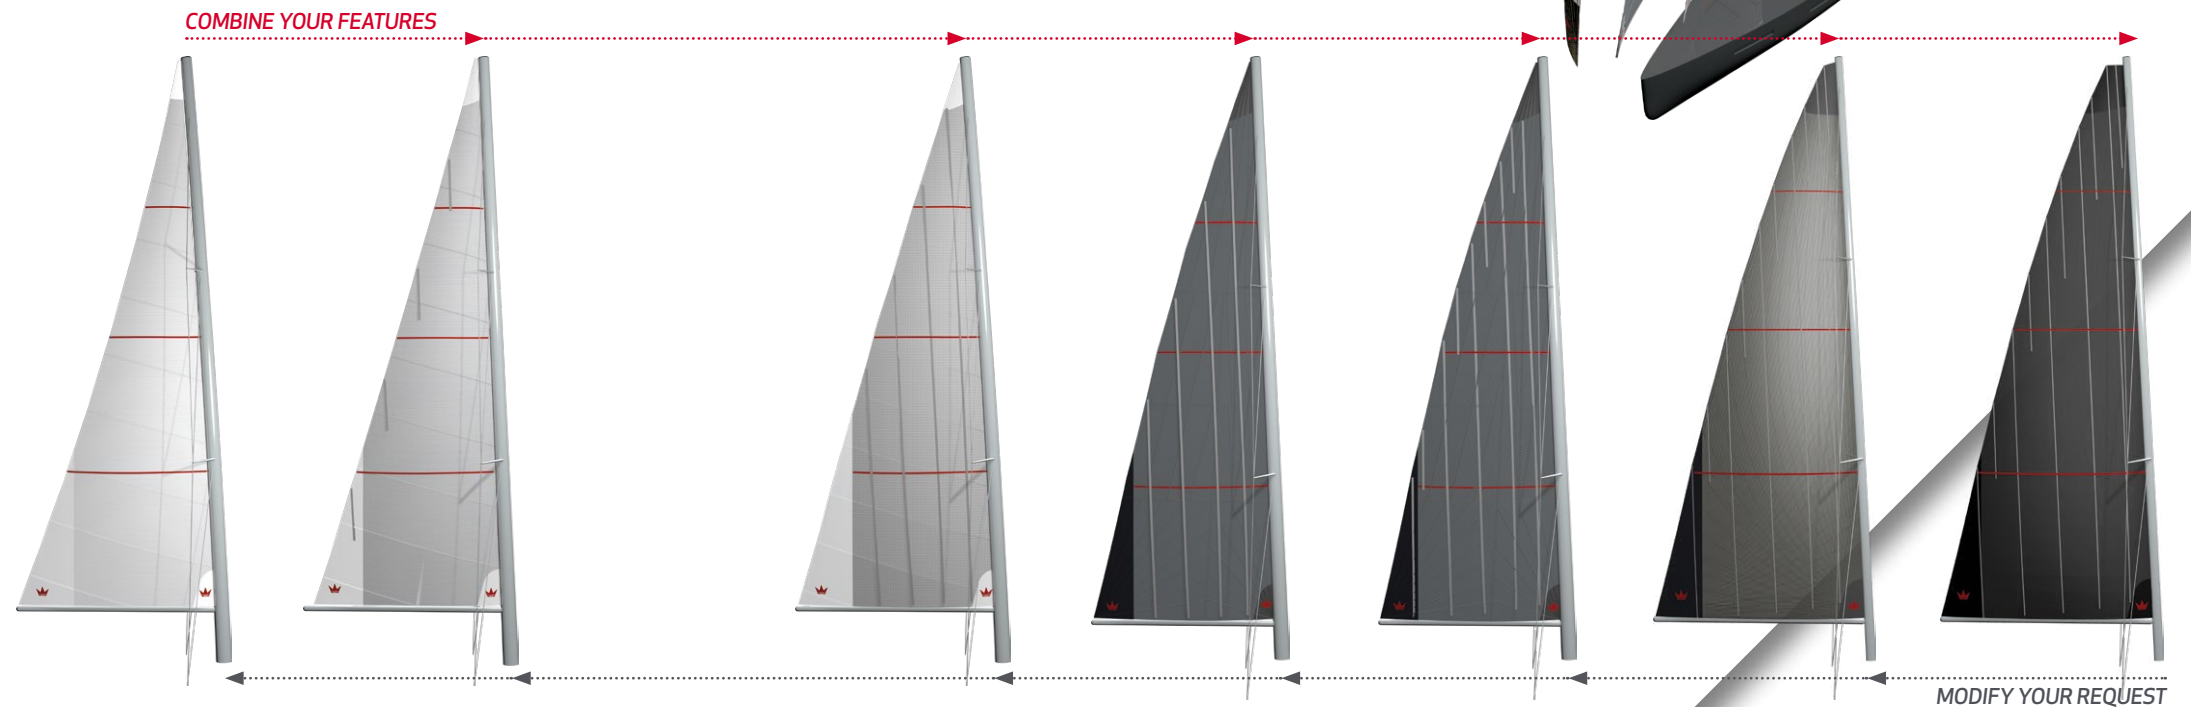

Choosing Sails: Sail Configurator

The decision-making process of buying a new sail or indeed a new wardrobe always takes a bit of consideration.

With the 3D Elvstrøm Sails-Configurator you can try out your ideas and preview them in 3D on different sail types both for mono- and multihull applications.

New options for you as a customer

The new Elvstrøm Sails Configurator is a direct look at our current programme, which is continuously updated with materials, colours and more. A good starting point for your further talks with your local Elvstrøm SailPoint. From cruising to racing sails – you will find them all in the configurator. Here's a look at the Furling in-mast sails.
